

BACKGROUND DISCLOSURE AND AUTHORIZATION FORM

The Arnold Center will request background information about you from a consumer report agency and other sources in connection with your employment application and for employment purposes. This information may be obtained in the form of consumer reports and/or investigative consumer reports (interviews, online research, etc.). These reports may be obtained at any time after receipt of your authorization and, if you are hired by the Arnold Center, throughout your employment.

The reports may contain information bearing on your character, general reputation, personal characteristics, mode of living and credit standing. The types of information that may be obtained include, but are not limited to: social security number verifications; credit reports; social media, criminal conviction records check; public court records check; driving records check, Recipient's Rights check, federal debarments, educational records check, employment verifications: personal and professional reference checks; licensing and certification records checks; etc. Information contained in the reports will be obtained from private and public record sources including, as appropriate, personal interviews.

Background checks are position sensitive. Meaning, a more comprehensive investigation may be required pursuant to state or federal law for certain positions such as president, vice president and chief financial officer.

The information obtained from background reports will only be used by the Arnold Center for employment purposes under the fair Credit Reporting Act, which means that information obtained from the background reports will be used for employment candidate screening, promotion, reassignment or retention of the employee.

*The Arnold Center's Administrative Office Manager will prepare and assemble background reports for the Arnold Center. For information and questions regarding the disclosure and authorization process, including the nature and scope of the consumer reports, contact the Arnold Center's Administrative Office Manager at (989) 631-9570. A summary of your rights under the Fair Credit Reporting Act is also being provided to you (see attachment).

AUTHORIZATION TO CONDUCT BACKGROUND INVESTIGATIONS

I have carefully read and understand this disclosure and authorization and the attached summary of rights under the Fair Credit Reporting Act. By my signature below, I consent to the release of consumer reports and investigative consumer report prepared by the Arnold Center. I understand that if the company hires me, my consent will apply and the Arnold Center may obtain reports, throughout my employment.

I understand that information contained in my employment application, or otherwise disclosed by me before or during my employment, if any, may be used for the purpose of obtaining and evaluating background reports on me.

By my signature below, I authorize law enforcement agencies, learning institutions, information service bureaus, credit bureaus, record/data repositories, courts (federal, state and local), motor vehicle records agencies, my past or present employers, the military, and other individuals and sources to furnish any and all information on me that is requested by the Arnold Center.

By my signature below, I certify the information I provided on this form is true and correct. I agree that this Disclosure and Authorization form in original, faxed, photocopied or electronic (including electronically signed) form; will be valid for any reports that may be requested by or on behalf of the Arnold Center.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore or write to: Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 1700 G Street N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

- You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment – or to take another adverse action against you – must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.
- You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your “file disclosure”). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:
 - a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
 - you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
 - your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
 - you are on public assistance;
 - you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, all consumers are entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for an explanation of dispute procedures.
- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.

- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need – usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.

- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

- You may limit “prescreened” offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited “prescreened” offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt-out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-567- 8688.

- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.

- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. Federal enforcers are:
